

This early American coloring page shows what an early Blacksmith shop might have looked like. Almost every town needed at least one Blacksmith to create metal objects and create the needed horse shoes. Landis Valley Museum's blacksmith is usually hard at work making items and talking to the visitors. Just listen for the strike of the hammer to find the Blacksmith Shop!